National Work and Family Awards Finalist

1st Aug 2007

Enterprise initiatives would like to congratulate our client Nine2Three Employment Solutions for being nominated as a finalist of the ACCI/BCA National Work and Family Awards 2007.

Nine2Three, a small recruitment business from the Sutherland Shire (south of Sydney), was awarded the 'Carer Support Commendation' for outstanding achievement in providing flexible work-life initiatives, policies and practices to employees with caring responsibilities.

In a media release on the 16th of July, Joe Hockey identified that with unemployment the lowest it's been since the mid 1970's, it is vital for employers to initiate flexible working arrangements to meet recruitment and retention needs of organisations. Nine2Three has promoted this through internal initiatives as well as interviews and publications urging local businesses to start taking work/life balance seriously.

An employee of Nine2Three Nicole Jorgenson has been quoted as saying 'Nine2Three has given me the perfect opportunity to balance my work and family life'. Nicole's attitude reflects her satisfaction with her employer and her employment situation. A workforce that reflects a these levels of satisfactions are more engaged, more committed and more productive in their work

Employers should look at the importance of managing a positive attitude to work/life and look to Nine2Three as an example of how valuable promoting this element of employment can be.
